Story Two : The Doctor

henchmen neatly stacks three bundles of twenty-five on the table.

You chose: See the raise.

'That's a little rich for my blood', you declare and lean back in your chair, 'but I can't let you just walk away with all that money uncontested.' With a smile you pick up your bag and empty the last remaining seventy-five thousand onto the pile.

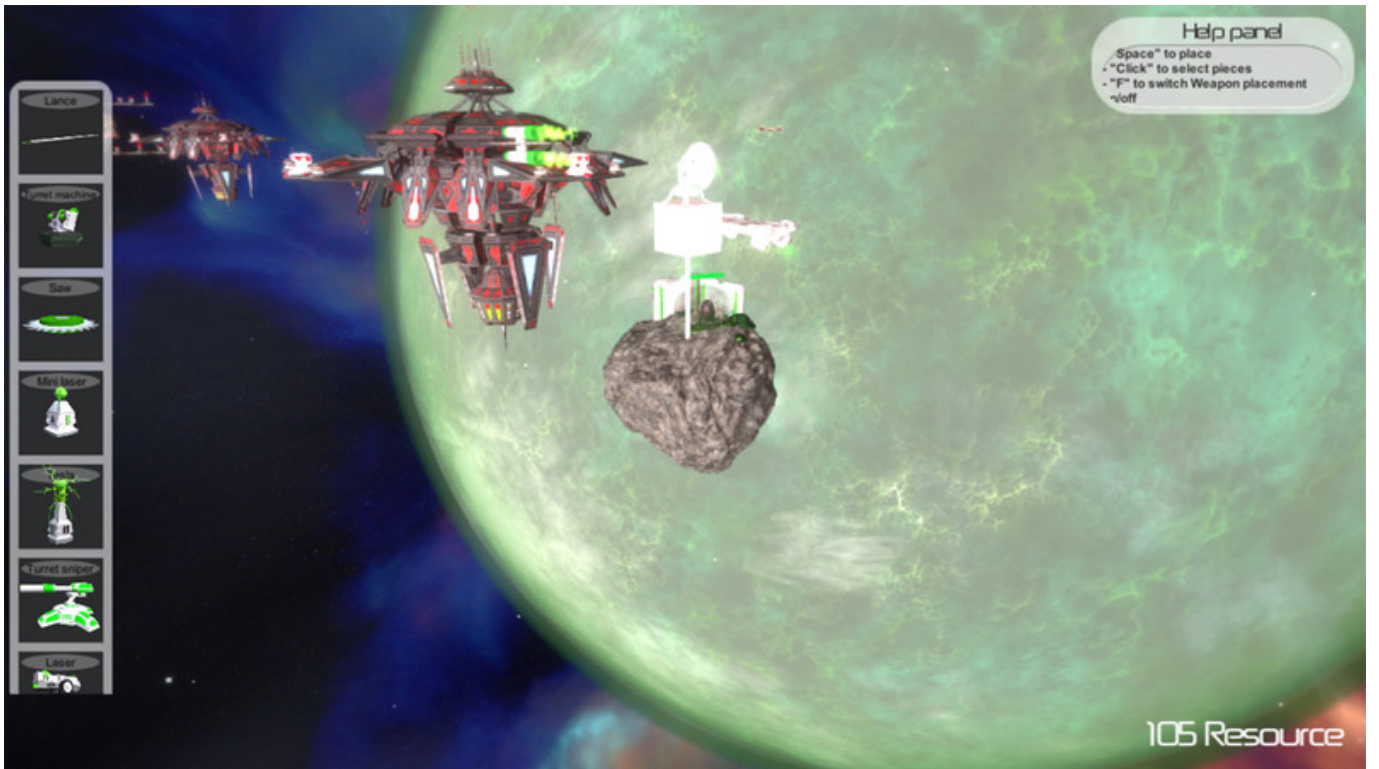

'On you, Yamada,' you say as you drop the bag to the ground and pick your cards back up. He just sits and stares at you for an uncomfortable amount of time before muttering something in Japanese that ends with the words 'Fun Park', to which his henchmen laugh a little bit. It most likely has something to do with last week's game when Bill Finnigan himself was here, sitting exactly where you are now, and lost his shirt as well as a majority stake in the Finnigan Brothers' Fun Park. Rumor even has it that is part of the reason the whole thing is shutting down in the next few months.

'What do you say to four three's, Mr. Stansfield,' he says mockingly as he turns his cards face up and drops them onto the table. A sweat breaks out on your forehead, your mouth suddenly dries up, and your asshole puckers. You reach for your glass and down the contents, then flip your cards over without looking but knowing damn well that he got you. Both Chief Williams and the joking man sigh and jeer as your hand signals the end of the game.
