As a beginner Photoshop user I started off using Photoshop Elements for all my basic image edits. But after a while I switched to using Gimp when I wanted to make more intensive edits to my images. Here's what I learned about image editing and why I prefer Gimp to Photoshop Elements. 1. Open Source Many image editors are not free software and require buying licenses. A lot of beginners start with Elements because it's available for free. If you are looking for ways to get a free image editor, check out this list of the best free image editors. Adobe Photoshop Elements has the same advantages of Gimp. It is open source so you can modify it to your heart's content. You can share your own versions of it or collaborate on the source code. The best part of open source software is that you can get help and ideas from other users. While you will have to spend some effort to learn Photoshop, you are also able to make open source contributions to improve the quality of the software. 2. Easy to Use While Photoshop Elements is quite easy to use, Gimp is more suited for more experienced users. Photoshop Elements is meant to be the first desktop editor you learn. It supports a very simple workflow and has a basic learning curve. On the other hand, if you are an advanced user, Gimp offers more advanced features. If you are looking for a feature-rich image editor, it's best to use Gimp. 3. GPU-Accelerated Adobe's version of Photoshop is available in both 32-bit and 64-bit versions, but it is GPU-accelerated. This means it will use the graphical processing unit (GPU) of your computer to do image editing. On computers with good graphics cards, this is a huge advantage. It makes the editing process go a lot faster than on computers without GPUs. On the other hand, Gimp is an open source application and runs on the CPU. It uses the CPU to do editing. If you want a fast editing experience, it's a bad idea to use Gimp. 4. Effectiveness While Photoshop Elements supports a vast array of basic image editing tasks, Gimp is better at them. It offers more of the capabilities that you will use for editing. It supports layers, color correction, perspective and more. It also supports more advanced image editing features like 388ed7b0c7

1. Field of the Invention The present invention generally relates to an image processing apparatus, an image processing method, a program, and a recording medium, and more particularly to an image processing apparatus and method suitable for processing an image having a large data size such as image data in a digital camera or the like, and a program to be executed by a computer, and a recording medium on which the program is recorded. 2. Description of the Related Art In recent years, small and inexpensive digital cameras have been spreading widely. Digital cameras convert image data of an object into a digital signal and store the data in a recording medium such as a memory card. For example, such a digital camera is described in Japanese Unexamined Patent Application Publication No. 2005-34729. FIG. 1 is a block diagram showing the structure of a conventional digital camera. The digital camera shown in FIG. 1 is connected to a personal computer (PC) 100 via a communication terminal 1001 such as an IEEE 1394, and there is provided an image processing apparatus 1100 connected to the digital camera via a communication terminal 1102. The image processing apparatus 1100 includes a digital filter 1101 for applying various image processes to an image signal input from the digital camera, and an external output terminal 1103. Image data output from the external output terminal 1103 is transmitted to the personal computer 100, and displayed on a display section of the personal computer 100. In the digital camera, image data (a JPEG-LS image) of an object obtained by imaging an object is input from an image sensor and read by the image processing apparatus 1100. The image processing apparatus 1100 performs various image processes such as addition of a white balance, and converts an image from the original signal format into a format the personal computer 100 can process. In the above-mentioned structure, a photographed image obtained from an object by an image sensor in a digital camera is read by the image processing apparatus and subjected to various image processes such as a white balance, a gamma correction, and the like, so that an image signal is output, and the image signal is transmitted to the personal computer, and displayed on the display screen. In recent years, digital cameras are spreading widely. When a photographed image obtained by imaging an object by a digital camera is transmitted from the digital camera to a personal computer or the like, the digital camera is connected to the personal computer or the like via a communication terminal such as an IEEE 1394, and the image data is transferred. Therefore
